Following my previous submission, I object to the revised plans on the following grounds:

Still way too tall and over developed, no mention of revitalising Glebe Island Bridge, and too little given back to the public.

Public transport and roads in the area won't handle the additional density, and the foreshore will be shaded, cold and likely windswept (Barrangaroo has similar wind tunnel issues).

The tallest buildings are well and truly over the appropriate height limit. The scale of the development will be well and truly out of proportion to the rest of the headland.
