Hi Paul

I'm not expecting that Crown Lands would be making comment to the public exhibition.

Regards

Greg

Hi [REDACTED]

I'm just checking that Crown Land is on track to provide any comment to the public exhibition of North Tuncurry URA by 30 June 2022. DPE has a tight turn around of the assessment process following exhibition and we want to ensure all advice is received in a timely manner.

The Department of Planning and Environment acknowledges that it stands on Aboriginal land. We acknowledge the traditional custodians of the land and we show our respect for elders past, present and emerging through thoughtful and collaborative approaches to our work, seeking to demonstrate our ongoing commitment to providing places in which Aboriginal people are included socially, culturally and economically.

Subject: North Tuncurry Urban Release Area - Crown Land consultation post-exhibition

Hi [REDACTED],

North Tuncurry Urban Release Area (NTURA) Rezoning Study is currently on exhibition on the Department of Planning and Environment's website here. It will remain on exhibition for public submissions until 17 June 2022.

The North Tuncurry Biodiversity Conservation Report is also on public exhibition concurrently with the proposed rezoning. The North Tuncurry Biodiversity Conservation public exhibition can be found here

I refer both exhibitions to Crown Land and would like to extend the opportunity to provide comment further to that already received from Crown Land to date. Any written comment in response to the public exhibition of the proposed rezoning is required in 28 days from this email (due 30 June 2022).

If you would like to discuss any of these matters, please do not hesitate to contact me on the number below.
